Power Couples

Dr. T. D. Worthington

I've often wondered, why you cannot find many couples in the New Testament? Now, the Old Testament tells us about a great number of couples. You have Abraham and Sarah, Adam and Eve, and a host of other famous couples. But when you move to the New Testament, about the only couple that stands out is Mary and Joseph, and even Joseph disappears at some point, and Mary's left as a single woman at the Cross.

I feel pretty sure that Paul was married, because to be a Pharisee I understand you had to be married. But, his wife is never mentioned. Perhaps she deserted him when he became a follower of Jesus. I am pretty sure the Jewish religious leaders would have supported her in that decision. We know that Peter was married. We know this because his mother-in-law had a fever, and Jesus healed her. There is just not much in the New Testament about couples. But, if you look hard, you will find one special couple. And the more you look, the more powerful they become. The more obvious it becomes that there was more to their marriage than just a physical union.

Actually, it is quite apparent that there was a divine assignment and mission attached to this couple. I noticed something else. Every time their name is mentioned, it's together. They're mentioned eight times in the Bible, and every time, their names are mentioned together. Their names are Priscilla and Aquila.

To be mentioned eight times in the Bible, you might assume they were important people. Yet, it doesn't seem that way at all. They don't appear to have a publicly famous ministry. They did not sing in church that we are aware of. They did not preach. They did not perform any miracles, but apparently whatever they did, they did it together. It is apparent they had a profound mission attached to their marriage.

If you're going to make it together, you must be aware that there are forces trying to pull you apart. The enemy knows that there is a mission attached to every marriage. There's more to it than just making love. There's more to it than just living together. There's more to it than living in the same house and raising kids. There is always a special mission that God has for your marriage.

Priscilla and Aquila, show us a remarkable example of what our marriages are supposed to be. God puts couples together on purpose and for a purpose. We're joined together in ministry. Sometimes it will be the husband helping the wife in her ministry and sometimes it will be the wife helping the husband in his ministry. Sometimes you will be co-laborers in the same ministry. That's just how it works.

God allowed Sherry and I, out of billions of people on the earth, to meet and receive the gift of love and get married. Of course, you can't have a marriage without two funerals, two people dying to self, and becoming one. He made us different to make us one.

When we first hear of Priscilla and Aquila they are newlyweds, and living in Rome. Aquila was a Jew, he got saved in Jerusalem. He then goes to Rome, and when he gets to Rome, he meets a Greek girl, and he falls in love with her. They were from different religions. They also had different backgrounds. She was a pagan, but he apparently won her to the Lord. And now, they're living as a young couple in Rome. But, Rome is in a bit of turmoil. There is racial tension, as the Romans despised the Jews. The hatred was so strong that Emperor Claudius ordered all Jews to be expelled from the city.

Therefore, this young couple, who were now both Christians, are forced into an unjust and brutal situation. They were compelled to leave everything that they had. They end up going to Corinth to establish another home. This was a big deal for the young couple, and here's the point. They had a chance to allow bitterness to get in their heart in that moment. They had a chance to allow unforgiveness against the people who had done something to them that was unjust. That could have destroyed their ministry, because one of the greatest enemies of the mission that God has for our marriages is bitterness and unforgiveness. Sometimes it can come from the outside, or it can come from inside of your own marriage. When the enemy wants to destroy the mission of a couple, he comes with his favorite weapons, bitterness and unforgiveness. But Christ-centered couples don't fall into this trap. Their mission drives them to a greater place of destiny.

So they leave Rome, and now, this young couple moves to Corinth, and while they're in Corinth, something amazing happens. There happens to be a guy in town by the name of Paul. Very few people have ever heard of him in Corinth, and those that had, didn't really care for him. He has recently had an encounter with Jesus Christ. It had been reported that he has stopped killing Christians and God is doing a great work in his life. He doesn't have anywhere to live, he's gone through such a transformation that all of his peers, his Pharisee friends, have kicked him out. He's homeless, and we are told in Acts 18 that this special couple takes this unknown guy into their home. They found room in their house and in their hearts, and Paul lived with them for 18 months.

Finally, in Acts 19 we are told that Paul felt led by the Spirit to leave them and go to Ephesus. Ephesus was a wicked city, but revival breaks out and the whole city turns to God. The Bible said they turned from their idols, and Paul sends for Priscilla and Aquila to come and help him start the church in Ephesus. The Bible tells us that they came to the city, found a house, and turned their new home into the first church in Ephesus. And now we have the whole Book of Ephesians and all the miracles that God did, in part because a couple obeyed God and opened up their home. Of course, just like you and I, they had to go to work every day, they had to pay bills, they had to put food on the table, later they probably had to raise kids, and yes, they had struggles just like us. Yet, they were committed to the ministry.

Just think, all those great lessons we learn in the book of Ephesians were first heard in the church that was in their house. And while they were there, a guy by the name of Apollos, came to their home. He was a great speaker, but he only knew of the baptism of John. He had never heard of the baptism in the Holy Spirit. The Bible tells us that Aquila and Priscilla, after he gave a speech, pulled him off to the side of the pulpit, and laid hands on him, said, "We want to show you a better way." And when they laid hands on him the Bible said he was filled with the Spirit and began to preach. Are you beginning to see what God can do through a power couple?

And then, something tragic happened. There was a guy by the name of Nero who didn't like what was going on in Ephesus. And so, he burned the whole city down and blamed it on the Christians. Their home was burned also. And now, they're being forced to leave Ephesus and go back to Corinth. But, when the fires come, and when the troubles come, and when the issues of life come, when bad things come, when you've got a mission to your marriage, you just grab hold of each other and say, "We're gonna make it through this, because God is with us, and He's got a mission on our life."

But here's what got me. This simple couple, had such a touch of God and a mission assigned to their marriage that in Romans 16, Paul said. "Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers (co-workers—help meets) in Christ."

That's a very important phrase. Paul is using the same word that Jesus used when He said He thought it not robbery to be equal with God. Paul tells us that this power couple did not pastor a mega-church, they didn't have a television ministry, and they weren't in a musical band. They were not famous for anything spiritual, they were simple folks, but there was such a touch and such a mission on that couple, on their marriage, that they became co-equal with Paul in the ministry.

Paul basically says, "When I look back over my ministry, when I look at how God has used me, I have to say, one of the reasons I have been able to do what I've done, write all these books in the Bible, and start these churches by the power of the Holy Spirit, is because my helpers were a power couple." They had more than a passing love that threw in the towel when the thrill was gone. But they made it through the fire and the burning of their house. They made it through being done wrong and the temptation to be bitter.

Furthermore, Paul goes on to say:

"Who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles."

Romans 6:4

That means they were almost killed for Paul's sake. Many theologians believe it was when Paul was placed him in a basket to escape his enemies. Do you remember that? Assassins were knocking on the door, and perhaps it was this very couple that puts him in a basket. They've got half the New Testament, they've got numerous churches, they've got the gospel message that has saved millions, swinging in a basket on the end of a rope. Guess who's probably holding that rope? It is a couple with a mission, a power couple. And Paul as he is writing his final good byes writes a greeting to this power couple, and he says, "Your marriage was so important in my life that I see you as co-equal with everything I've done for the cause of Christ." Oh, how I want that kind of purpose on my marriage. I want that kind of purpose on my family. I want that kind of purpose in my home.

I believe our Lord is reminding all married couples that He has put you together for a purpose. Even if the circumstances that brought you together were not perfect in God's eyes, He makes all things new and even now He can renew and strengthen your relationship. He can heal your family, if it needs to be healed. He can establish or empower your mission, you just need to place Him at the center of your home and your marriage.

Remember, marriage isn't a duet, it's a trio. It's man, it's woman, and it's Jesus Christ intertwined as the glue holding the two together, making the two one. And it is so powerful and so holy, that God even likened the husband and wife relationship to Christ and His bride, the church.

Maybe somewhere along the line you have forgotten that as a couple you have a mission. It is my prayer that as you celebrate this Valentine's Season, you might be reminded of the distinct possibility that God has ordained you and your spouse to be a Power Couple for the Kingdom.

Love Like That

When our Lord walked this earth, He went about meeting the needs of those He met. Whether He fed them or took time to teach them a better way, He eased their burden. In love, He lightened the burdens of other people. He often didn't wait for people to say, "I have a burden, can you help me?" He invited people to bring their burdens to Him. He said in Matthew 11:28, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

The Scripture says in Acts 10 that Jesus "... went about doing good." To put that in modern terms, as He witnessed those with burdens He might say, "Hey, can I help you carry that load?" "Excuse me, can I provide some healing?" "Can I spend a few minutes blessing your family?" "Pardon Me, do you need someone to talk to?" "Hello, would you like something to eat?"

His love was so practical. He often spent time one-on-one with people that others had already written off as a lost cause. Many times, it just took one encounter with Jesus to change everything.

That is the ministry of GoMix Christian Radio. We want to manifest God's love like that. We desire to find ways to shoulder someone's burden, to take an interest in their family situation, to provide something they need to make life a little easier for them. God has given us the tool of radio to help accomplish this goal.

Although we can't minister quite like Jesus could, we still want to use our resources to share the Word of God with those who need it most. It doesn't matter if it is a drug addict, thief, prostitute, prisoner, or shady religious leader. Just like Jesus, we want to be open to them. He went into their houses. He sat and talked outside in the heat. He traveled miles and miles to visit the sick. Likewise, that is our mission. One burden lifted at a time, which might change the entire trajectory of someone's life.

My Love Letter

You just arrived home from work. You're tired. It's late. You unlock the door and step over the threshold as you thumb through the mail you pulled out of the mailbox on your way inside the house. You may even talk to yourself, "Junk mail. Junk mail. Insurance bill. Junk mail. Magazine. Junk mail. Wait... what's this?" You see handwritten letter from a loved one buried in between the everyday mundane. Now think for just a moment... which piece of mail would you open first?

The junk mail, right? No! Of course not! We'd all more than likely open the letter from our loved one first. Why? Because we love them, and it makes us happy to hear from them. We have a desire to know about the things they are writing to us about. It's personal. We want to know updates about their lives. It makes us feel close and connected to them.

Now, what if we had access to a personal letter written just for us from the Creator of the universe? Wait a minute... We do! We have access to God's Word in which He tells us of His great love for us. Just as we are excited about hearing from family and close friends, we should be excited about hearing from our Heavenly Father. He wants to give us updates, too. He wants to teach us new and exciting things every single day. He wants to reassure us of His unconditional love toward us. He wants us to feel closer to Him.

As a new year is already well underway, be sure you're spending some time in God's Word. Read His words of love and encouragement and learn the things He wants to teach you. Set aside the "junk mail" of your life for just a few moments each day and be excited about hearing from Him. His love letter to you might be sitting on the shelf just across the room from where you are right now waiting to be opened. What are you waiting for? He could have things He wants to tell you this very moment. Go ahead! Open that letter!

As I have gotten older, I have learned to cherish each moment of every day. Every part of my life has brought its own struggles and its own rewards. I would not change anything. Now, don't get me wrong. There are things I don't want to go through again, but the lessons I have learned are so valuable. If I could have learned them some other way, that would have been my preference. But those struggles have helped me to grow in every area of my life. I am a better wife, parent, grandparent, teacher, daughter, sister, and friend because of them. I have lots of room for improvement, but I am better for the struggles. I understand the true signs of love because of these struggles.

So many people are hurting in our world! If we look around and forget about ourselves for a few minutes, we will see the gravity of the situation. When people hurt, many times by their own doing, we need to look at ourselves and remember the ways we have messed up over the years. We will become far less judgmental and much more forgiving.

I was brought up in a Christian home with all the advantages of loving parents who cared deeply for me. I had other family members for support if I needed it. We weren't wealthy by any means, but I was never hungry, and I always had enough clothes to wear. I was of average intelligence, and I had some friends. I was fortunate enough to stay out of trouble, mostly because I wanted to please my parents, and I was raised that certain things were unacceptable. I was one of those who listened, at least for a while.

But my life took a turn, and I went to work when I was sixteen. I soon learned that it wasn't so easy when you were around people who did not care about what God said. Many kids at school didn't care, but they were not in my close circle. I could choose who I was around at school. This changed my outlook on many things.

Once I got out of high school, I faced situations I had never been faced with before. I am not proud to say it, but I did not always make the right choices. However, I am comforted to know that all of those sins are under the blood. The Lord has forgiven me, and He expects me to forgive others.

It is relatively easy for me to forgive people, and I do not find it difficult to ask someone to forgive me. It used to be. All I have to do to forgive someone is to look back at my past and remember how my Heavenly Father forgave me and continues to forgive me. I can look at my children as they make mistakes and remember my own. It keeps me from becoming angry, hurt, or disappointed. Oh yes, I have felt saddened at some of the choices they have made, but I was better able to help them when I remembered my poor choices. It is like that with every person in my life. I am not saying that it is always my first reaction when someone does something stupid. In my mind, my first reaction is how could you? How could you have ____? You fill in the blank! I have learned it is best not to react quickly. I am not always successful, but I have gotten much better over the years. I found it keeps me out of trouble.

If we look at life as we should, we will realize that our decisions, mistakes, and sins affect our Heavenly Father much more than anyone else. God gives us the blueprint on how to love. He put our needs above His own. God sent His Son to die on a cruel cross so that we might have salvation. He forgave our sins before we committed them. God is just waiting for us to ask for His forgiveness through His Son. I have been saved since I was fourteen, and God is still forgiving me. He also is my encourager, my provider, and my friend. He loves me enough to chasten me when I mess up, and He does it with so much love.

So are we showing love to the people in our lives? The gift of forgiveness, true forgiveness, is so precious. When we truly forgive, we remember it no more. Our Father in Heaven has wiped our lives clean because of Jesus. He is perfect and He forgives the imperfect. Why can't the imperfect forgive the imperfect and choose to remember no more? Our Heavenly Father puts our best interest first whether we realize it or not. We are so selfish that it is difficult for us to put the needs of others ahead of our own. Are you an encourager, a giver, and a true friend?

So do we show the signs of true love to others? Ask yourself if you are forgiving, encouraging, and selfless? Isn't it time we show Jesus' love to others?

“Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.”

LOVE

at first sight

Mrs. Kim Mills

I love when I do something really stupid, and the Lord uses it to teach me something about myself. Better to have something good come from it than to just be stupid, I guess. Here it goes...

The other day, the weather was nasty. It was drizzling rain, and I was driving to work. Not too long after I had turned on the main road, a big SUV behind me honked their horn. I knew it was rainy and a little difficult to see, but I thought, "I know I didn't pull out in front of you, why are you honking at me?" I moved over into the left lane and the car came on up my right side.

From my little Fiesta, all I could see up high on the SUV was that the back window was half way down and a small child was moving around in the back. My next thought was not very nice: "What kind of parent rides around in drizzling weather with their child in the back seat and the window down?"

I went on a little further and turned off on the road to my work. A few minutes later, I received a text message from my son-in-law that said, "That was me and Zoey (my granddaughter) honking at you a minute ago. She wanted to wave, but I don't think you could see us. Have a good morning."

Talk about feeling stupid! I laughed to myself and told him of my thoughts of "what kind of parent he was!"

The Holy Spirit immediately began pricking me. Don't you just love those sweet times of correction? I started asking myself questions like, "Why do you jump so quickly to such negative conclusions? Why did you automatically assume the worst about that person? Why do you look at situations from a negative perspective rather than looking at the good?"

I began examining my heart because I know out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaks. And, even though I had not actually spoken those words out loud, I might as well have. I know the battlefield is the mind and if I can clean it up and keep it from jumping to the negative, then I know I have really accomplished something.

One thing I know about myself is that I am a very discerning person. I believe that is a gift from God. However, I also know Satan loves to pervert that gift, and when he does, it comes out as judgment. Judgment does not allow any room for grace or mercy. I have jokingly been accused by my daughters of being “hard”. I admit, I do have to be careful of that. I usually justify it by saying, “Hey, I’m hard on myself too!”

If you look at the Bible from the perspective of judgment, it is hard. But, when you add love, you realize that it’s not judgment, but God’s mercy that wants only the best for us. When we judge someone, we don’t leave an out for that person. There is no room for good. There is not a love for that person there. There is only death.

But God has given us so many beautiful examples in His Word of how His love completely covers a person’s sin. Many times, before they even knew they needed His mercy, He extended it without hesitation. That is what He did for us when He sent His Son to die for us, before we ever even knew we needed Him. It is incomprehensible at times.

So, after much repenting and soul searching, I have asked the Lord to let me see through “love” colored glasses. I need to see the best in others, like I’m told to do in I Corinthians 13. I need to show the love of Christ. I have to admit, that is not always what comes to mind. Some folks are easy to love, some are not. Either way, the Bible says to show love. To be ever ready to show the love of Christ is to believe and think it first, not after you get to know the person, or after you find out they are a good person, or you find out the particulars of their situation. Love is ready to believe the best of every person.

I am praying God will give me “love” colored glasses to look at others and that I will truly see love at first sight!

Thank you, Lord, for choosing me and seeing the best in me first! I pray I will glorify You by seeing in others what You see.

And Finally...

Snow Days...

I absolutely love it when it snows! Although it's fun to get outside and play with the kids during the day making snowmen and snow angels, there's something special about the snow-covered ground at night. I think my favorite thing to do when it snows is to go for a late-night walk when the streets are quiet and it feels like the world is asleep. I like to walk at night all throughout the year, but there's something almost magical about the moon reflecting off of the snow when it's bright enough to light up the neighborhood.

B. F.

I wish we had more snow days. I like it when I get to stay home from school and play outside with my friends. We like to have snowball fights and make snowmen. One time, there was ice and we were able to go sledding on a small hill near my house. We also ate some icicles that were hanging on the trees. That was so fun! My mom made us hot chocolate with marshmallows when we got back. I hope it snows again this year.

We don't have many snow days around here, but when we do, I like to take full advantage of them! I enjoy cooking a big pot of homemade vegetable soup or chili for the family to eat off of for the day. Regardless of whether Christmas has passed, I'll usually watch at least one Christmas movie. And don't forget about the snow cream! I'm not completely lazy though. I might wash a load or two of laundry. I said "might", right?

When snow is falling outside, what I crave is time in the kitchen. I want to put time into creating something that fills the house with warmth and the scent of something delicious in the oven. The world comes to a beautiful, snow-covered halt here in the south. We discover time we didn't realize we had. It's easy to find God in a beautiful snowy afternoon. He's in the stillness of the snow falling gently on the grass. He's in the joyful laughter of children sledding down a backyard hill. He's also in the magic of how a few simple ingredients in the kitchen come together to make a special treat for those you love.

Thanks to You The Old Light Still Shines!

Your willingness to support our ministry has made such a big difference. You were there... always there... with prayers, encouragement, and generosity throughout the entire year.

Now, as we enter 2023, we thank you for continuing to be such a significant part of our team.

This New Year will doubtless contain many challenges and opportunities. Although we are confident in our Lord's sufficiency, it is difficult to imagine being able to accomplish our work without your continued support.

Thank you for being with us in the struggles and in the victories. For that we shall be ever grateful... and humbled.
